BISHOPS ORGANIZED

Work of the Great Episcopal Convention Began in Earnest.

Dr. Morgan Dix Presides Over the House of Deputies.

Officers and Standing Committees Elected by Both Houses.

This morning at 9 o'clock the Triennial Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church began its operations in carnest.

The House of Deputies was duly organized by the unanimous election of Dr. Morgan Dix as President of the body. Dr. Charles L. Huchins, Medford, Mass., was made Secretary Rev. Dr. Henry Anstice, of West New York; Rev. E. W. Worthington, of Ohio; Rev. Cauvel N. Davis, of Missouri, and Rev. W. C. Prout, of Albany, were appointed Assistant Secretaries. The House of Bishops were then informed that the House of Deputies had organized. It was decided to hold meetings every day from 9 was decided to hold meetings every day from M. M. to 1 P. M., and from 2 P. M. to 5 P. M.

At 10 o'clock Dr. Morgan Dix gave several lusty raps with his gavel and called the meeting to order. When he called for the roll call it was moved and seconded that the calling of 'he names should be omitted, and those members who came late should advise the secretary.

The first message from the House of Bishops was brought in at this moment, saying that the bishops had organized, with William Tulloch, of Counceticut, as secretary.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, by this time the church was nearly filled with the deputies, and business began to go with the deputies. The branching committees were briskness.

The names of the standing committees were then read by Dr. Hutchins.

Mr. Stark of Connectiont presented the petition of the Diocese of Oregon for admission into mnon with the Convention, and pending this petition that the delegates should be received into the session of the Deputies. It was granted.

The lively way in which the deputies got to their feet with motions, the amendments, &c., gave Dr. Dix plenty of work to do. Occasionally a deputy remarked that by "a ruling of the court," and then corrected himself to "of the court, and then connecticut, then intro-the chair."

Dr. Harwood, of Connecticut, then intro-duced a Canadian delegation, covaisting of the Ht. lev. Dr. Sullivan, Bishop of Algona; Bt. Rev. Dr. Covtney, of Nova Scotia; the Rev. Dean of Huror, William Craig; the Rev. Arch-deacon L. Lewis, of Montreal, and Judge McDorald, in the name of the delegates, ex-maid. Dix, in the name of the delegates, ex-d cordial welcome to the new arrivals, and he assemidy would be glad to hear anything tended cordial welcome to the new arrivals, and said the assembly would be glad to bear suything they might care to say.

Dr. Sullivan addressed the House, speaking of the sympathy that existed between the Canadian and American churches.

Bishon Courtney, of Nova Scotia; as well as the Very Reverent Dean of Huron, London, Canada; the Archbishon of Montreal and Judges McDonald the one lay representative in the Canadian delegation addressed the deputies.

A Financial Plan for the World's Fair

There are unmistakable signs that the World's Fair enterprise is booming at last. Though members of the Finance Committee will not admit it, it is believed that the money plan is as good as decided upon.

A special meeting of the full Committee has been called for to-morrow afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce, and it is likely that the plan may then be made public, thus settling another great question in connection with the Exposition.

The Site and Buildings Committee is also expected to meet to-morrow and take important astion.

Communications favoring this city for the Exposition of 1892, and making suggestions about position of 1892, and making suggestions about the buildings, &c., continue to pour in upon Mayor Grant.

Gov. Buikeley, of Conneticut, writes to the Mayor: "I feel certain that the people of this State are decidedly interested in the location of the International Exposition of 1892 in New York City, and will willingly co-operate in every proper way to aid. I think I am safe in assuming that Conneticut is wholly with you."

Lawyer Francis M. Jencks writes to Mayor Grant regarding his suggestion that the Art Museum ground and Manhattan Square he added to the site: "Such addition provides sufficient land without using the upper part of Central Park. Manhattan Square lies out-ide of the Park limits proper, and the Art Museum is so located that the plan proposed cannot injure the Park.

"It the city should synend, say $500,000 on of the Park limits proper, and the Art Museum is so located that the plan proposed cannot injure the Park.

"It the city should expend, say $500,000 on the two museum buildings, and give the ruse, it would be, for the purposes of the Exposition, almost equivalent to a subscription by the city of that amount of money, while to the city it would only be anticipating an expenditure already contemplated, and which will probably be made, in any event, within about ten years.

Frank M. Gray, real estate dealer, suggests that the proprietors of the hotels, the railroad and steamship companies and the steamboat and Elevated Railroad companies be called upon for liberal subscriptions.

Margaret A. Robert, Pennsylvania Commissioner at the Paris Exposition, writes to suggest that steps be taken to secure many of the grand exhibits now in Paris.

Cartolletti, who was employed in a machine-shop in Fagagua, had a very pretty wife, with whom Gailo became infatuated.

He annoyed her with his persecutions until she was compelled to have a guard.

Gailo and Cartelletti met one evening, exchanged words, and Gallo publicity announced his intention of killing Cartelletti.

The next day Gallo hid in the factory with a double-barreled afforgun and shot Carlo as he entered.

Carlo was taken home and his life saved, but he will be a cripple for life.

Gallo fied to the woods and after dodging the the officers for two years, came to this country and secured work in hilford. Mass.

He was there arrested for an attempted assault on a child of eleven years, but escaped and fied to Pitsaburg, where he was arrested yesterday.

"How in the world did you come to marry such a child to any one?" an Eyrnino World reporter askel of the pastor and Superintendent of the Five Points Mission, one of New York's noblest charities.

"The couple come to me with James Nokohama and Lizzie Henderson Nokohama, a couple whom I married isst January," replied Mr. Bouton.

"I said to the bride-elect: 'You don't look to be clust enough to marry—are you sixteen?" She replied that she would be eighteen soon and I married them.

Wintred Corman is the daughter of a lighter-man, John Corman, of 287 Front street—the edeet of three children. Six months ago the mother died and sluce then Winnie has had perfect liberty. She worked in a paper-box factory and rau the streets.

Yesterday he reported at Capt. Carpenter's station that Winnie had not been home since Sunday. Officer Clark went with him to the barracks, 432 Water street, where Nokolama and his white wire kept a Japanese boarding-house on one floor, and above, on the fourth floor, thirty-five or forty Chinamen lists a ranch fitted up with bunks and gambling tables.

Here they found the girl, who is not yet fifteen years old, tearful and repentant. She was a wife and corry for it.

The young husband and Mr. and Mrs. Nokolama were arrested and taken before Justice Hogan this morning.

"Oh. sir! I don't know why I married him. I first met him at lizzle's and he asked me, "said the girl-bride, weeping bitterly as she falked with the reporter.

"I do not want him. I would rather go back to my father."

"Affirst met Winnie last Thanksgiving and I have level her ever since. Poor girl, her mother died six months ago, and she and the other children were coming up in the streets.

"I carn money. I get an average of $30 a month and my board, and I wanted to be an American citizen. I could help to take care of her and the children, so I asked her and she married me. I thought she was old enough. She is older than Japanese girls when we marry them. I do not think I have done wrong. I have not harmed her, anyway. She was my wife to be forever. I was patient."

The girl corroborates all this, but nevertheless her young husband was guilty in marrying a girl of her youth of abduction, a felony punishable by live years in State prison.

Winnie's great, stalwart father was overwrought with grant laws at her not

Justice Hogan committed Winnie to the care

While the policemen were hustling around Kelly, and, the latter was apaking with Umpire McChaid. Tebeau, of the home team, stepped up to the head officer and said:

"Say, aren't you rather rough? One would think you were handling a murderer.

"We've heard of this chap, answered the man with brass buttons, 'and think he is a disgrace to the business,'

"Kelly was let go outside of the enclosure, and Manager Hart went and purchased a ticket and insisted that the Captain should be allowed to return; but the officer declared that he would arrest both him and Kelly if he tried to take the player back again."

Murnane al o quotes Director Conant as saying that three or four of the players were going a little strong, and that he would give Manager Hart ome atrict orders for the remainder of the week.

Another story from Cleveland has it that Kelly's exaberant state yesterday was due to his hubilation over Hoston's brief good luck in forging ahead on Tuesday.

The Boston Captain was in uniform at the time of the disgraceful scene which led to his expulsion from the grounds, though he was not playing; and he had cocasioned much annoyance before the climax in the sixth inning, by his loud talk and comments on the game and the umpire.

Publicity Drove Young Van De Linde to Commit Suicide.

Mrs. Augustus Stevens Van De Linde, nee Miss Nana Williams, was utterly prostrated this norning over the sad tragedy of the suicide of her young husband, within two hours after the publication of the story of their courtship and marriage in yesterday's Brooklyn Eagle. The young bride bought a copy of the paper esterday afternoon, and the two read the story together. He was annoyed at the publicity, and she left the office, to meet him again at her home in half an hour.

Twenty minutes later he ended his life by anding a pistol bullet through his right temple. The bride is an extremely handsome brunette. she is tall and has a lithe, willowy figure. She is a loader in St. Angustine's R. C. Church, a teacher in the Sunday-school and a very active nember of several church societies. 'She is but twenty-one years of age.

Mr. Van De Linde was the oldest son of James H. Van De Linde, a wealthy New Yorker. He lived at 184 Berkeley place.

The story of their courtship, as taken from the Eagle, briefly told, is as follows: Miss Williams attended a beauty contest at the Athenseum last Spring, and young Augustus was smitten. It was a case of love at first sight, and the two were together constantly.

During the Summer the Van De Lindes spent nost of the time at Saratoga and the courtship proceeded under most favorable circumstances.

Both parties kept it very quiet. Finally, on Aug. 29 the couple were married at the girl's home, by Father P. J. McNamara, pastor of Our Lady of Mercy Church.

Augustus returned home and Mrs. Van De Linde has been living at her home. 191 Bergen atreet. The marriage was kept ecret.

The young man was annoyed after reading the above story, as he wished to talk with his mother about it, and he feit that the publication of the story would make it appear as though he wished to keep his marriage a secret.

An Evenino World reporter called at the bride's home this morning, and the true story is best told in her own language as well as her grief would bermit:

"Gus felt very hadly after reading that story," said she. "as he wanted to tell his mother himself. It was so arranged that we were going away to day, on a short trip.

"He said he would be around to see me in a little while and I went home.

"It is untrue that we first met three months ago at the fair in his Athonsum; that it was a case of love at first sight, and, as intimated, I was after him because of his financial circumstances.

"We knew each other a year and a half. We became acquainted at the house of a mutual friend, and have been around together ever since." "We loved each other and were married. loth parties kept it very quiet. Finally, on since. We loved each other and were married.

"We loved each other and were married, my mother knew of our angagement, as Augustus asked her a month before for her consent." The reporter then visited the home of the Van De Lindes. Mr. Stevens, the boy's uncle, in whose office he worked, said that the members of the family were acquainted with the fact of the wedding, but that the young man was bashful and had not discussed it with his family. The unexpected publication, just as he was about to tell his mother, probably affected his brain and he killed himself.

"There was no reason why he should keep it brain and he killed himself.

There was no reason why he should keep it quiet, as he was not restrained in the least.

It was arranged to inform his mother of her son's nucled his noon. She is in a very critical condition, having suffered with heart disease, and the blow may kill her.

Coroner Rooney held an inquest over the body, and the verdict was that young Yan De Linde came to his death by a pistol bullet, in-flicted by himself while temporarily insane.

Reporter Vultee Wedded. Louis H. Vultee, a reporter on the Jersey City Evening Journal, and Miss Lizzie Slavin, daughter of Richard Slavin, a wealthy Greenville resident, were married last evening at St. Paul's R. C. Church by Rev. Father Schandele. About 300 friends attended the reception at the residence of the bride's parents, IV Stevens avenue, after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Vultee have gone to Niagara Falls on their veldies trip.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD,] Washington, Oct. 3.—The delegates to the International American Congress, who basked yesterday in the smiles and hospitality of Presideut Harrison and Secretary Blaine, left at about 8.15 this morning on the beginning of the six weeks' jaunt about the country which is to precede its deliberative session here. John B. Henderson, who was made temporary President of the Congress yesterday, was left behind, failing to reach the depot on time, but expects to join the party at West Point this evening. The special train was superbly made up for the Congress. It comprised seven cars, including sleepers, a dining car and a combination car, with bath-room, barber shop, reading room, library, &c., the entire train being vesti room, library, &c., the entire train being vestibuled.

A number of newspaper men accompany the party on its trip.

The train was scheduled to reach Jersey City at 1.45 7. m.

Members of the Congress arose and breakfasted carly this morning and then went at once to the train, which stood ready for them in charge of the State Department's specialty appointed agent. William E. Curtis, at the Pennsylvania Hallroad depot.

The party will go directly to West Point, making no present stop at New York, and will there fully investigate the Government Military School and its workings.

When the Congress returns to Washington to hold its ession, Nov. 18, it will discuss many topics of interest to all the Americas, and the debates are expected to be materially enriched by points gathered in the present tour.

Folitics are to be barred in these discussions, it is expected here that the selection of Secretary Blaine for permanent President of the Congress will be regarded with a somewhat jeelous eye by some formign powers who have a greedy regard for the advantages of South American trade and who will be lear int of the opportunities which the Secretary will find attached to his position in this international body.

Since last February the Scanlans have had trouble with the Sheep Butchers' Provident Association, with the Edison Association and the Wool Pullers' Union.

In that month they discharged their union hands—thirteen butchers and thirty-five wools pullers—and employed new men, imported from Chicago and Boston.

There has been a constant warfare since with the old men. They have attempted to hinder and obstruct the work at the shops ever since have issued boycotting circulars and trapped the non-union men into descriting their work—so the Scanlans and their foreman say.

"The big safe in the office is now full of boycotting circulars," said the latter. It was apparently at the safe that the blow was aimed the more provided the non-union men into descriting their work—so the same that the blow was aimed the more provided to the same that the blow was aimed the more provided the non-union, was disturbed by the presence of three of the new employees and pursuaded them to leave their job.

On the same night, Foreman Michael Mahoney who is an object of special enmity of the discharged men, was disturbed by the presence of strangers in the hallway of the tenement in Thirty-ninth street in which he lives.

He believed that they were lying in wait for bim. If they were their plot failed, for Mahoney was sale in the bouse when they believed him out.

"The number of our employees will not be lessened, but rather increased by the change from horse power as we expect to do a great deal more business.

"We shall certainly employ five times as many mechanics as now. Nearly all our present drivers are intelligent men, and as far as possible we intend to make a stripman of every driver. They will receive 25 cents a day more for working on the cable cars than they are getting now. "We now use about 2, 000 horses and during the cloven years that I have been President of this company, 6,000 of our horses have died from overwork, and I think this is a fair estimate for all roads doing a large business.

"When our system is complete we shall have sisteen miles of cable. We cannot say now how many cars will be needed. None of our present cars which will astonish New Yorkers.
